1. Introduction

Today, the scope of e-learning is very wide. This has enabled students to do their distance learning from home and lecturers to deliver their lectures from home.

YALE School Of ART is a specialized educational institution for art. This will serve a great purpose in improving students' Painting, Printmaking, Digital Animation, Graphic Design and Sculpture. Apart from this, information about special events and exhibitions in their educational institution is updated daily in their website. Apart from this, the information about their annual students, the information of the teachers who teach there, the information of the Subjects taught in the institution, etc., are given in that website.

In this project we use high fidelity prototyping, and it is not expensive, and we managed to finish it early. Here we satisfied the issues pointed out by the stakeholders according to the contextual inquiry. For the pages we have redesigned here, navigation bar, add search bar option, use attractive hover effect, use specific icons, font size, background images and use minimum no of background colors to redesign this website contents. Inbuild forms have been introduced for external Google forms. Its plans were well executed for the overall final prototype design, and features were implemented to improve the app's usability. This new format provides more functionality than the current Yale School website.

2. Methodology

artyale.edu is a web-based application that used to display yale school details and allows to apply for the school via online. This page conducts many usability issues like bad web designing, color mismatching, distracting background images and many more nonuser friendly things. In this project our main mission was to recreate this webpage into more user-friendly way with using human computer interaction concepts.

Data analysis is very important when it comes to recreating a website that already has usability issues. To understand what data that are valuable to the page and what are the main things that users about to be concerned about when using this webpage, we did an interview questionnaire. We gather information from different stakeholders who use this website frequently to understand usability issues from stakeholder perspectives. Also, we get some overall idea about other school's web pages and how its functions are working.

After data sorting using our basic idea and we started creating sketches. To do that we used wireframing technique. Drew two sketches per interface and justified the pros and cons using ideation techniques to identify the best sketches.

For this project, Sketching is one of the important activities that should be followed before design high fidelity prototype for selected interfaces of the web application. Sketching is a technique mainly used by designers for web and graphic design projects. Figma prototyping tool were used to design high fidelity prototypes for selected interfaces of the web application. Figma is a vector graphics editor and prototyping tool for design high fidelity prototypes.

4. Summary

Having a legitimate site for a college is vital. It directs undergraduates to explore openings in academic courses, school disciplines, and school environments. An accurate and complete website is a compelling tool for both undergraduates and staff. A strong idea of school projects, especially in relation to school progress and other learning requirements, is an endurance test for students to remain exceptional. It is to execute a first-class plan in one place and cooperate with academics to provide undergraduates with high-quality, accurate and reliable management. The framework is carried out utilizing a bunch of software like Figma, Illustrator, and Photoshop to make a minimal expense, adaptable, adjustable, and steady framework.

5. Future Works

- ❖ Future work in the future we need to implement those works such as,
- ❖ There are also issues with refreshing and redirecting here. As a result, this will need to be addressed in the future.

- ❖ There are also clashing issues. That means you won't be able to browse the page using Chrome all the time. It is necessary to use the new iconic tab. This is also something that must be addressed.
- ❖ Some information has become obsolete because of a lack of timely updates. We will do a complete job based on the lessons learned from this present project in the future. In the future, rather than current initiative, we will focus on future projects that will be more efficient.

Below the title is a bold statement: 'THE YALE SCHOOL OF ART IS A GRADUATE SCHOOL THAT CONFERS MASTER OF FINE ARTS DEGREES IN GRAPHIC DESIGN, PAINTING/PRINTMAKING, PHOTOGRAPHY, AND SCULPTURE'. A text box contains the following text:

Artists and designers of unusual promise and strong motivation are provided an educational context in which they can explore the potential of their own talents in the midst of an intense critical dialogue. This dialogue is generated by their peers, by distinguished visitors, and by a faculty comprised of professional artists of acknowledged accomplishment.

The graduate student's primary educational experience at Yale is centered on the student's own studio activity. Supporting this enterprise are the experience, knowledge, and skills gained from rigorous, structured courses such as drawing, filmmaking, the relativity of color, and the rich academic offerings found throughout Yale. Each student is routinely exposed to many aesthetic positions through encounters with faculty members and visitors. The School is devoted not only to the refinement of visual skills, but also to the cultivation of the mind. Students must bring creative force and imagination to their own development, for these qualities cannot be taught—they can only be stimulated and appreciated.

The School of Art offers an undergraduate art major for students in Yale College (see the bulletin Yale College Programs of Study). In addition, the School's courses are open to students in the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences and other professional schools of the University, and School of Art students may enroll in elective courses in the Graduate School and other professional schools as well as in the College with permission.

Celebrate the Life, Art, & Legacy of Winfred Rembert

Winfred Rembert (1945–2021) was an artist from Cuthbert, Georgia, whose paintings have been exhibited at museums and galleries around the country. He was recently cited as “one of the century’s most unique and visionary artist-chroniclers of Black American life, alongside such giants as Jacob Lawrence and Horace Pippin.” Rembert grew up in a family of field laborers. He joined the Civil Rights movement as a teenager, survived a near-lynching at the hands of law enforcement, and spent seven years on chain gangs. Decades later, at the age of 51 and encouraged by his wife Patsy, Rembert became an artist to share his life story by carving, tooling, and painting autobiographical scenes from his youth onto leather canvas, using leather-tooling skills he had learned in prison. Rembert was honored by the Equal Justice Initiative in 2015, and in 2016 received a United States Artists Barr Fellowship. His illustrated memoir Chasing Me to My Grave, as told to Erin L. Kelly, with a foreword by Bryan Stevenson, was long-listed for the Carnegie Medal of Excellence in Nonfiction and won the Mary Lynn Kotz Award for Art In Literature and the 2022 Pulitzer Prize in Biography.
